The Twelve Tables were the earliest code and the basis of all Roman law. They were called by Livy (3, 34) the fons omnis publici privatique iuris. The contest for equality between the patricians and the plebeians reached its climax in the first half of the fifth century B.C. The plebeians were gaining, step by step, recognition of civil rights and participation in the government, oppression becoming less and less prevalent or possible. The complaints by the plebeians of oppression by the patricians, in whom had been lodged all civil rights and the administration of the governmental powers, gave rise to the preparation of the Twelve Tables, which defined rights and fixed penalties and thus prevented oppression under legal forms.

In 451 B.C., a body of ten men, the Decemvirs, all patricians, were chosen to draw up a code of laws. All the functions of the government were placed in their hands during the progress of the work. Ten Tables were drawn up, accepted by the people, and set up on bronze or copper plates fastened to pillars in the Forum. In 450 B.C., Decemvirs were again appointed, seven patricians and three plebeians, and two more Tables were added. These were henceforth known as the Laws of the Twelve Tables. They were destroyed in 390 B.C. when Rome was taken, sacked, and burned by the Gauls. Some two score fragments and references to some over one hundred provisions come down to us, chiefly in the writings of Cicero, Gaius, and Ulpian.

The Twelve Tables did not constitute a newly enacted code. They were chiefly a restatement of earlier legislation. Some of the provisions may have a resemblance to the Laws of Solon and other Greek models, but the Twelve Tables were essentially Roman. Much of the earlier Roman legislation was copied bodily. Although the tablets were destroyed by the northern invaders, the substance of the Tables was preserved by the commentators, and many of the laws appear intact in the Code of Justinian.

This translation is here published in order to make accessible in English the extant fragments and the allusions in a few legal and classical writers, to students who are not able to read the Latin texts readily. The Latin text here followed is from Bruns, Fontes iuris Romani, 7th ed., 1909, pp. 17-40.

That actress of his (minam omitted by Bruns) he ordered to keep her own property according to the Twelve Tables, he took away her keys, he turned her out (i.e. divorced her).

I have heard, a woman . . . bore a child in the eleventh month after the death of her husband, and because of the occurrence, (sc. she was charged) as if she had conceived after the death of her husband, since the Decemvirs had written that a child is born in ten months, not in the eleventh.

TABLE V.
SUCCESSION AND GUARDIANSHIP.

The ancients wanted women, even if they may be of full age, to be under tutelage; — the Vestal virgins excepted, whom — they wished to be free: therefore it was so provided by a law of the Twelve Tables.

3. uti legassit super pecunia tutelave suae rei, ita ius escit.

4. si intestato moritur, cui suus heres nec escit, adgnatus proximus familia habet.

5. si adgnatus nec escit, gentiles familia habent.

7. a. si furiosus escit, adgnatum gentiliumque in eo pecuniaque ei ius potestas est.

8. ulpius ad Sabinum (D. 27,10,1 pr.): lege XII tab. prodigo interdictur honorum suorum administratio. Ulpius (fr. 12,2): lege XII tab. — prodigum, cui bonis interdictum est, in curatione iubet esse agnatorum.

The res mancipi of a woman, who was under the tutelage of her agnates, could not be acquired by prescription, unless they had been handed over by herself with the authority of her guardian: and that was so provided by a law of the Twelve Tables.

As a man shall have provided by will concerning his property or the tutelage of his family, so let it be law.

If a man die intestate, and without suus heres, let the nearest agnate have the family property.

And if there be no agnate, let the gentiles have the family property.

Those to whom a tutor may not have been appointed by testament, by a law of the Twelve Tables their agnates are their tutors.

a. If he be a lunatic, control over him and his property shall be in the hands of his agnates and gentiles.

b. . . . but if there be no curator (some provision made for his custody.)

. . . c. By a law of the Twelve Tables the management of his property is forbidden to a spendthrift. A law of the Twelve Tables directs that a spendthrift who has been prohibited the management of his property be under the charge of his agnates.

A law of the Twelve Tables confers the inheritance of a Roman citizen who is a freedman on his patron, if the freedman has died intestate without a suus heres. . . (The term familia relates to persons) when the lex speaks of the patron and the freedman, ‘from that family’, . . . ‘into this family’.

Those things which are debts, — according to a law of the Twelve Tables, ipso iure have been divided into hereditary shares. . . . according to a law of the Twelve Tables an inherited debt (sc. due to or by the deceased) was apportioned by that same law according to the ascertained individual shares.
10. Gainus ad ed. provinciale (D. 102,1 pr.): Haec actio (familiae eriscundae) profisciscitur e lege XII tabularum.

This action (familiae eriscundae, i. e., for dividing the family property) is derived from a law of the Twelve Tables.

TABLE VI.

OWNERSHIP AND POSSESSION.

1. CUM NEXUM FACIET MAN-CIPUMQUE, UTI LINGUA NUN-CUPASSIT, ITA IUS ESTO.

2. Cicero (de off. 3,16,65): cum ex XII tab. satis esset ea praestari quae essent lingua nuncupata, quae qui inflictus esset, dupli poenam subiret, a iuris consulti etiam reticentiae poena est constituta.

7. TIGNUM IUNCTUM AEDIBUS VINEAVE ET CONCAPIT NE SOLVITO.

8. Ulpianus ad dictum (D. 47,3,1 pr.): Lex XII tab. neque solvere permittitt tignum furtivum aedibus vel vi-neis iunctum neque vindicare, — sed in eum, qui convictus est iunxisse, in dup-lum dat actionem.

When one effects nexum and mancipium, as the language has called it, so be the law.

While by the Twelve Tables it used to be enough that those things be made good which were expressly declared, and for what had been misrepresented (the vendor) would be subjected to double damages, the penalty was likewise imposed by the jurisconsults in case of silence.

Right of possession of land was acquired in two years, — of all other property in one year.

By a law of the Twelve Tables it was provided that if a wife did not wish to come under the (legal) power of her husband she should absent herself for three nights each year and thus interrupt the course of each year.

a. If any engage in close combat in court ("hand grapple", a fictitious combat) . . . b. A law of the Twelve Tables confirms both a mancipation and a surrender in court.

The advocates (for Virginia) demand that (Ap. Claudius) should allow the claim for her liberty in the meantime according to a law proposed by himself.

Let no one detach a beam built into a house or vineyard (et concapit, corrupt and not translatable).

The law of the Twelve Tables neither permits one to detach a stolen beam built into a house or vineyard nor to lay claim to it as one's own, — but against him, who has been convicted of having attached it, such law gives an action for double the value.

The interpreters of the Twelve Tables describe the border extending around the house. — Festus: The border extending around the buildings is described as open, two and a half feet. Maecianus: A sestertius is worth two and a half asses. — There is a law of the Twelve Tables by a syllogism in which two and a half feet are called a 'sestertius pes'. (Sestertium was used as a measure of dimension, two and a half feet deep.)

It is understood that in an action for determining boundaries that must be observed which was written (in the Twelve Tables) as patterned after, to a certain extent, that law which it is said Solon promulgated at Athens: If anyone a fence etc.

a. In the Twelve Tables 'villa' is nowhere mentioned; 'hortus' is always used with that signification; in truth 'heredium' is used for 'garden'. b. The sordid huts, the homes of the country folk, are called tuguria from tectum (covered), by which term Messalla in his interpretation of the Twelve Tables also says it is expressed.

The Twelve Tables did not permit usucaption to be exercised inside a space of five feet (so, a neutral zone between neighboring landowners).

a. If they quarrel (adjoining owners, as to boundaries) . . . b. A controversy has arisen concerning boundaries, in relation to which, — in accordance with the Twelve Tables we three as arbiters shall determine the boundaries.

They (neighboring owners) shall make the road passable: if they have not cleared their road from stones, let one drive with one's beast of burden where one wishes.

a. If rain water creates injury, . . .

b. If a stream of water passing through a public place shall cause injury to a private person, there will be a private action according to a law of the Twelve Tables, that the injury to the owner may be made good.

a. A law of the Twelve Tables wished to bring it about that the branches of a tree be trimmed fifteen feet higher (than the ground). . . . b. If a tree from the estate of a neighbor be broken down by the wind upon your estate, according to a law of the Twelve Tables concerning taking things away rightly you may carry it off.

By a law of the Twelve Tables it was provided that one should be allowed to gather nuts fallen on land belonging to another.

Goods sold and delivered are not acquired by the purchaser unless he has paid the price to the vendor or given satisfaction in another way, for example either by giving a surety or a pledge; which was provided by a law of the Twelve Tables.

(Sc. A slave) ordered to be free under this condition 'if he give ten thousand sesterces to the heir', though he have been alienated by the heir, will attain his freedom on giving the money to the purchaser: and this is ordered by a law of the Twelve Tables.

Tables for double the amount. (Breach

A law of the Twelve Tables gives the power to these guilds to make rules for their government in what manner they wish, provided they do not make rules contrary to the public law; but this law seems to be copied from a law of Solon.

4. Pomponius enchirid. (D. 1,2,2,23): quaestores — qui capitalibus rebus praesent, — appellabantur quaestores parricidii, quorum etiam meminit lex XII tab.

5. Marcianus (D. 48,4,3): Lex XII tab. iubet eum, qui hostem concitaverit quive civem hosti tradiderit, capite puniri.

‘Let them permit no special privileges; as to capital punishment of a citizen, let them not carry it out unless by order of the comitia centuriata.’ — Two very excellent laws copied from the Twelve Tables, of which one does away with special privileges, the other prohibits capital punishment of a citizen to be carried out unless by order of the comitia centuriata.

Do you think it a harsh law which punishes with death a judex or arbiter appointed to a court of justice who has been convicted of accepting money for passing judgment?

Quaestors who have charge over capital crimes are called quaestores parricidii, of whom even the law of the Twelve Tables makes mention.

A law of the Twelve Tables orders him who stirs up an enemy (sc. of the Roman people) or who delivers a citizen to an enemy to be punished by death.

The decrees of the Twelve Tables forbid any uncondemned man whom-ever to be put to death.

TABLE X.

BURIALS AND FUNERAL RITES.

1. HOMINEM MORTUUM IN URBE NE SEPELITO NEVE URITO.

Let not (anyone) bury or burn a dead person within the city.
THE LAWS OF THE TWELVE TABLES

2. . . . HOC PLUS NE FACITO: ROGUM ASCEA NE POLITO.

4. MULIERES GENAS NE RANDUNTO, NEVE LESSUM FUNERIS ERGO HABENTO.

5. a. HOMINE MORTUO NE OSSA LEGITO, QUO POST FUNUS FACIAT. — b. Cicero (l. c. 24,60): Excipit bellicam peregrinamque mortem.

8. . . . NEVE AURUM ADDITO AT CUI AURO DENTES IUNCTI ESCUNT. AST IM CUM I LLO SEPELIET URETVE, SE FRAUDE ESTO.

More than this let no one do: Let no one smooth a funeral pile with an axe.

Expense therefore being reduced to three suits of mourning and small tunic of purple and ten flute players (sc. the rule) even does away with (excessive) lamentation.

Let not the women tear their cheeks or make the lessus or funeral wailings.

a. When a man has died do not collect the bones in order to have a funeral afterwards. b. Exception is made with regard to those who die in battle or in a foreign land.

a. Besides these there are in the laws (sc. other provisions)—: 'servile anointing is prohibited and all drinking around in a funeral meal'. — 'Let there be no expensive respersions, (sprinkling of the funeral pile with wine), no long garlands, no incense boxes'. — b. There is an indication that the ancients used a drink spiced with myrrh, because the Twelve Tables forbade the placing of it on a corpse.

Whoever by himself gains a crown, or (if) money is given to him on account of his merit or virtue, let the honor be accorded to him (i. e., the crown placed on the deceased and buried with him.)

Let no gold be put into the grave with the dead. If the teeth of the deceased are fastened with gold let it be buried or burned with him, and no wrong be done.

(A law of the Twelve Tables) prohibits a new funeral pile or pyre nearer than sixty feet to a neighbor's house without his consent.

Let the sepulchre and its vestibule be not subject to usucaption.

TABLE XI.

SUPPLEMENTARY—MARRIAGE; COURT DAYS.

1. Cicero (de rep. 2.36.61—37,63): When (the Decemvirs) had drawn (Decemviri) cum X tabulas summam legum acquitate prudentiaque conscriptissent, in annum posterum Xviros alios subrogaverunt, — qui duabus tabulis iniquarum legum additis — conubia — ut ne plebi cum patriibus essent, inhumanissima lege sanxerunt.

up the ten tables of the laws with the utmost equity and prudence, they appointed to office other Decemvirs to succeed them in the following year, — who, having added two tables of unjust laws provided by a most inhumane law that marriage might not exist between plebeians and patricians.

Tuditanus says that the Decemvirs who added two to the ten tables asked the people about inserting them. Cassius writes that the same ones were the authors.

From which (books about the state) you ask for a history of Cn. Flavius son of Annius. — Truly he did not live before the Decemvirs (i.e. the authors of the Twelve Tables.) What therefore did he accomplish in that he posted the legal court days? They think that at one time that table was concealed so that the days for pleading in court might be known to a few.

TABLE XII.

SUPPLEMENTARY—PROCEDURE; LEGISLATION.

1. Gaius (4,28): Lege autem introducta est pignoris capio, velut lege XII tab. adversus eum, qui hostiam emisset nec pretium redderet; item adversus eum, qui mercedem non redderet pro eo iumento, quod quis ideo locasset, ut inde pecuniam acceptam in dapem, id est in sacrificium, impenderet.

But pignoris capio was introduced by statute, as for instance by a law of the Twelve Tables against him who had bought a victim for sacrifice and not paid the price; likewise against him who did not return the fee for that beast which someone had hired out so that thereafter he might devote the money received to a sacrificial feast.

If a slave commits a theft or inflicts an injury (the owner was liable, by the actio noxalis, to surrender the slave or pay damages). — b. Noxal actions have been brought about by the wrongful acts of sons under power and of slaves, so that it be permitted to the father or owner either to bear the pecuniary damage or surrender the wrongdoer by way of reparation. — (Noxal actions) have been created. . . . either by leges or by Praetor's edict: by leges, for instance, for theft, by a law of the Twelve Tables, etc.
3. SI VINDICIAM FALSAM TULIT, SI VELIT IS . . . TOR ARBITROS TRIS DATO, EORUM ARBITRIO . . . FRUCTUS DUPLIONE DAMNUM DECIDITO.

4. Gaius 1. VI ad XII (D. 44,6,3): Rem, de qua controversia est, prohibemur (lege XII tab.) in sacrum dedicare: alioquin dupli poenam patimur, — sed duplum utrum fisco an adversario praestandum sit, nihil ex primitur.

5. Livius (7,17,12): in XII tabulis legem esse, ut quodcumque postremum populus iussisset, id ius ratumque esset.

If (the Praetor) has awarded interim possession to the wrong party, if this party wishes it, the Praetor must appoint three arbiters. On their decision (of the value of the object of vindication and its) fruits, the Praetor must award damages at double the amount.

We are forbidden (by a law of the Twelve Tables) to dedicate to sacred uses a thing which is the subject of litigation: otherwise (i.e., if we do) we suffer a double penalty, — but nothing is expressed as to whether the fine goes to the treasury or to the adversary.

There was a law in the Twelve Tables that whatever the people had ordered last, that should be the law and carried out.
