

Twitter Guide

L01-3442 Tradition and Innovation: Chinese Painting 4th-20th Centuries

Students in classes that use Twitter to increase engagement have been found to average 5 grade points higher than those in regular classes.
-Study published in Journal of Computer Assisted Learning, 2011

How Twitter will be used in the class:

- Tweets count for 25% of participation grade, totaling 10% of final grade
- Prepare for in-class discussion and continue discussions outside of the classroom
- Share relevant information, news, events, and updates
- Connect with WUSTL librarians for research and twitter questions
- Exchange comments and questions about readings and assignments
- Anonymous course feedback during the term through Twitpolls

Course Twitter search stream: #Art3442

Twitter Guidelines:

- You must have a Twitter account.
- You must complete all Twitter assignments. Additional high-quality and relevant tweets will increase your participation grade.
- You must include hashtag #Art3442 to receive Twitter participation credit!
- You don't have to specifically follow your classmates or censor your usual tweets: just set up a search for #Art3442 for your personal Twitter client and use the hashtag #Art3442 for anything specifically related to class.

Twitter Resources

- @kkleutghen: Professor Kleutghen's Twitter feed <http://www.twitter.com/kkleutghen>
- @WUSTLLibraries: help with research, library queries, and all things Twitter at Washington University <http://www.twitter.com/WUSTLLibraries/>
 - Makiba Foster: mfoster@wustl.edu
 - Brian Vetruba: bvetruba@wustl.edu
 - One-on-one or small group tutorials with WUSTLLibraries Twitter Team
 - September 29: Twitter 101 workshop at Olin
- #Art3442 Twitter Feed on Blackboard
- Twitter 101: <http://bit.ly/jTaTDC>
- Art History Twitter Feeds (<http://bit.ly/b9ckgu>)
- Twitter Feeds for Art Scholars (<http://bit.ly/e5GRXt>)
- www.twitter.com - Twitter in your browser
- www.tweetdeck.com - Twitter for your computer, browser, mobile device that allows individual customized columns for different groups, search streams, etc.